INTRODUCTION

Oxfordshire has a rich diversity of historic landscapes, parks and gardens. These range from medieval deer parks, turf mazes and knot gardens to the Oxford Botanic and college gardens; from picturesque landscapes to arts and crafts gardens and from urban parks and rural allotments to 21st century gardens.

Parks, gardens and landscapes in the county are not limited to historic examples: although Oxfordshire happens to have a special legacy from the past, the present and future continue to be a test-bed for putting exciting new ideas and garden philosophies into practice, in both public and private spheres.

The Oxfordshire Gardens Trust was launched in 2002 and promotes the understanding, enjoyment and protection of parks and gardens in the county.

Membership is open to anyone who is interested in Oxfordshire gardens and garden design.

There is much work to be done in creating awareness of the myriad types of gardens and landscapes in Oxfordshire, and ensuring that they are protected. In 2015 we completed a heritage lottery funded survey of the walled kitchen gardens across the county; we are now compiling a county-wide inventory of all historic landscapes in our area.

We hope that that you will join us and take part in some of our activities.

WHAT WE DO

Our activities include:

- Researching the history and development of historic parks and gardens
- Commenting on planning applications
- A programme of visits to parks and gardens that are not normally open to the public
- A series of evening lectures by speakers who are experts in their field.

All of our events offer a chance to meet other members in a convivial atmosphere, and we offer a glass of wine at all our lectures.

We plan to extend our activities to working with schools, publishing research and encouraging restoration projects. We also hope to offer advice and guidance to owners on the issues and challenges facing them.

As a member you will receive a twice-yearly newsletter and notifications for our events, either via email or post.

Details of our events and activities, and copies of previous newsletters, are available on our website:
